NOTES TO THE READER.

CLOCK TIME AND APPARENT TIME.

1st.—There are two kinds of time used in common Almanacs for the Sun's rising and setting: one is clock-lime, and the other is sun-time, or apparent time. Clocktime is always correct; but apparent time varies every day, and is alternately too "fast" or too "slow" of the clock.

This Almanac is calculated in Apparent-Time, and is in accordance with the old method. Almanacs in apparent time are known by the Sun's rising and setting when added, being equal to 12 hours; and at the time of its crossing the equator the rising and setting is at 6 o'clock. Such Almanacs are old fashioned, and are coming into disuse. They are not correct according to true time, and can be made so only by adding the amount the Sun is slow of the clock, and subtracting when it is "fast."

The Sun has not, since it was created, risen or sct at six o'clock when it was at tho equinoxes. And why? Because it does not come to the meridian at 12 o'clock at that time, a fact that is true for nearly every day in the year. The old idea that it is 12 o'clock when the shadow is at the noon-mark, is a mistaken one; and if timepièces be set at 12 at those times they will not be correct, except on the 15th of April and June, September 1st, and December 24th. Noon and 12 o'clock are not the same.

The irregularity of the Sun's motions causes the two kinds of time, and, in consequence of this variation, no dependence can be placed on the Sun for true time without knowing when it is in the meridian. This information we give for this Almanac. See the Sun in Meridian, at the head of cach Calendar page.

2d.—The rising, and setting of a star, may be carried several days backwards, by adding, or forwards, by subtracting four minutes per day, Sd.—As the days end at midnight, the rising, and setting of the Moon when after that time, will be found in the morning of the succeeding day, &c:

4th.—The times given for High Water are for that tide which succeeds the Moon's passage over the Meridian, and is computed from the United States' Coast Survey Tide Tables, and are correct. The winds will vary the tides.

Sow cabbages, beets, savoys, carrots, turnips, cauliflowers, brocoli, celery, radishes. Plant snap-beans. Transplant cabbages. Prick out celery. REMARKS. There is not much probability of either beets, parsnips, carrots, turnips succeeding at this season, especially the last, yet if wanted, a few may be ventured—under very favorable circumstances they may sown the ground should be shaded and lent moist succeed. If earrots be sown, the ground should be shaded and kept moist, and this protection continued for some time after they are up, or they will be killed by sun.

NEW TIDE TABLE.

Prepared expressly for Miller's Planters' & Merchants' Almanac.

The following Table exhibits the intervals of time respectively, which are to be applied to the time of High Water at Charleston Bar, to find the time of High Water at the places named. All the given times are to be added, excepting those to which the letter S is prefixed, which are to be subtracted.

The actual rise of the Tides depends on the strength and direction. of the wind, and it not unfrequently happens that a Tide which would, independently of these, have been small, is higher than another, otherwise much greater. But when a Tide which arrives when the Sun and Moon are in favorable position for producing a great elevation, is still further increased by a very strong wind, the rise of the water will bo uncommonly great, sufficient perhaps, to cause damage.

The interval called the Establishment of the Port, is the time which elapses between the southing of the Moon and the High Water, at a time when the Sun and Moon are both South at the same time. Now as the Establishment of the Port, if it were known, would enable us to find the time of high water at any time; so from a good Observation at the time of high water at any time, we can determine the Establishment of the Port. For many of our principal ports we have arrived at a close approximation in this respect. For Boston. 11h 7m. is now used as the Establishment of the Port; for New York, 8h 9m.; for Charleston, 7h 2m., &c.

The Table above, is corrected from the Official Tide Table, published by A. D. Bache, Superintendent United States Coast Survey. But only those ports, or places, indicated by an astrick(*) are corrected. The others remain as they have been for a long time, and arc supposed to be nearly correct.
